

Rachel Berenson Perry

Rachel Berenson Perry is fine arts curator emerita of the Indiana State Museum, where she organized and curated all the art exhibitions from 2003 through 2011. She has written numerous articles for American Art Review and Traces of Indiana and Midwestern History (Indiana Historical Society), winning the Jacob P. Dunn Award for best article in 2014. She has written nine books about Indiana artists, published by either Indiana University Press or the Indiana Historical Society. She was awarded the Dorothy Riker Hoosier Historian Award for making notable contributions to historical scholarship in 2017.

Originally from Bloomington, Rachel makes her home in Nashville, Indiana, where she enjoys hiking in nearby woods and making ceramics and linocut prints.